Change the scoring decision and/or the out sequence of the play.

Note: when making simple edits not in the current half inning, certain options are locked out to prevent changes that could affect the integrity of the game's log.

For instance, you cannot change a scoring decision from the runner reaching to the runner being putout, and vice versa, as these changes would affect subsequent plays.

With the exception of strikeout, walks and hit by pitch, at bats should end with an In Play pitch (which is recorded in the pitcher's official pitch count as a strike).

When you have completed all required changes to the at bat's pitch sequence, click 'Return to Plate App.' to go back to the main play editor screen.

Advanced Play Editing

If you need to make advanced changes to a play (such as change an out to a hit, or change the batter or pitcher), click the yellow Unlock button at the bottom of the editor.

Note: advanced edits should only be made as a last resort as they can result in unexpected changes to the order of hitters.

Note 1: Only insert at-bats as a last resort, as inserting an at-bat can affect the batting order for the entire game. When possible, undo all plays up to the point of the correction.

Note 2: When inserting subs, subsequent plays, up until the next substitution in that spot in the order, will be edited. The system will attempt to reassign all atbats, runners, and defensive stats, but you may need to confirm that subsequent plays are correct after completing the insert.
